Imposter Syndrome

Treating Anxiety, Depression, and Burnout in Clients Who Feel Like Frauds

Today's professional life of ever-changing roles, shifting responsibilities and new technologies to adapt to has left more clients than ever before struggling with imposter syndrome.

These clients, often outwardly successful, feel like undeserving frauds. Trapped in their own negative thoughts and never-ending self-doubt, many find themselves in your office struggling with anxiety, depression and burnout.

But treating these clients is tricky. They minimize their many abilities, shrug off their inner strengths and see themselves as unworthy – leaving you struggling to show them their true talents and value.

Lillian Gibson, PhD is a licensed clinical psychologist who's been helping clients escape the self-doubt and self-criticism of "not being enough" for over a decade. Now in this live one-day webinar you'll get the tools you need to help clients overcome imposter feelings, treat their resulting anxiety and depression, and guide them to a life of self-confidence, peace, and self-assurance in both their work and personal lives.

With interactive exercises you can immediately use in your practice you'll leave able to identify clients with imposter syndrome and capably move them past their stuck points. PLUS you'll get specific guidance for working with the anxiety and depression that often plagues these clients using ACT and CBT.

Don't wait to get up to speed on this rapidly growing client population.

Meet Your Speaker

Lillian Gibson, PhD, is a licensed clinical psychologist who's been helping clients escape the self-doubt and self-criticism of "not being enough" for over a decade. In addition to working with clients facing race-based traumas, minority stress, anxiety, depression, trauma, insomnia, nightmares, and chronic medical conditions, Dr. Gibson has helped medical residents and budding mental health clinicians uniquely develop their professional voice when entering into their careers.

Dr. Gibson is a highly recommended speaker, consultant, and clinician who is frequently engaged by non-profit agencies, community-based programs, and mental health agencies to inform and train their staff on culture affirming best practices for both employees and patients.

Experienced in a variety of settings including inpatient mental health centers, outpatient behavioral care services, and primary care settings, Dr. Gibson's professional footprints include places such as Johns Hopkins Medicine and the Quality Education for Minorities Network. Dr. Gibson has also conducted international research in Johannesburg, South Africa.
